DETAILED ACTION

1. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 15-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U. S. Patent No. 4,556,888 to McNaul.

With respect to claims 15 and 17, McNaul discloses a method for determining the polarization of a signal having a horizontal component and a vertical component, comprising the steps of: sampling the horizontal component of the signal to generate a first series of digital samples and sampling the vertical component of this signal to generate a second series of digital samples (see Figs. 2D-2G; Abstract, lines 1-4; col. 2, lines 9-26 and line 55-64; and col. 4, line 45 to col. 5, line 15) and processing the first series of data and the second series of data by combining one or more elements from the first series of digital samples with one or more elements from the second series of digital samples, at least some of the elements from the first and second series of digital samples being offset from each other to determine the polarization of the signal (see Fig. 6; Abstract, lines 4-11; col. 1, lines 32-34; col. 2, line 65 to col. 3, line 56; and col. 7, lines 16-49).

McNaul does not disclose expressly storing the first and second series of digital samples in a memory.

It is, however, considered inherent that McNaul stores the first and second series of digital samples in a memory (see col. 7, lines 16-20), because such storing is known to be a necessary step in order that stored samples can be compared to predetermined patterns in order to determine the polarization of the received radiation (see McNaul, col. 7, lines 18-20).

As to claim 16, McNaul also discloses expanding the first and the second series of digital samples before processing (see col. 6, lines 9-15).

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 1-14 are allowed.
5. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

U. S. Patent No. 4,556,888 to McNaul is the reference closest to the claimed invention. McNaul discloses apparatus for determining the polarization of a signal having vertical and horizontal components comprising: (a) one or more registers for storing the first series of sample values representing a horizontal component of the signal and for storing a second series of sample values representing a vertical component of the signal. However, McNaul does not teach (b) a plurality of sets of cyclically operative calculation elements being arranged to combine values in said first and second series with one another so as to provide one or more output values for each cycle and thereby provide one or more output values for each cycle, said different ones of said sample values being arranged to supply to each such set on successive cycles of operation, whereby each such set will provided one or more series of output values when operated through a plurality of cycles, different ones of said sets of calculation elements being arranged to combine values according to different transfer functions, at least some of said sets of calculation elements being operative in parallel with one another and (c) one or more evaluation circuits connected to at least some of said sets of calculation elements so as to receive the series of output values provided by such sets, said one or more evaluation circuits being operative to compare one or more characteristics of at least some of said series of output values and select one or more series having preselected characteristics and thereby identify the set of calculation elements which provided such one or more series and provide information about the polarization of the signal; and including all of the other limitations in the respective independent claims.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.

Art Unit: 2857
